

ART TRAIL INFO & LOCATIONS

"Making Southall in Miniature" TK Hay Hayes Gate Bridge

A theatre designer by training, TK Hay has created miniature versions of important Southall buildings, from Southall Manor House to the Tudor Rose. By showing historic landmarks alongside everyday meeting places, the work asks what we choose to remember and celebrates where community life happens.

"The Broadway Manja" Shirin Naveed Southall Broadway

Inspired by Manja – traditional rope beds central to South Asian domestic life – this work was developed with a multi-generational group of people of different ages with a connection to Southall. Etched into the surface are song-lyrics and a graphic score developed by the artist, tracing histories of migration and diverse musical cultures.

"Faces of Southall" Raj Dhunna Merrick Road Footbridge (entrance / exit)

This collective portrait brings together a series of profiles to create a snapshot of Southall's community. Celebrating joy, colour and collaboration, the work is based on sketches the artist made in the area, including on Southall Broadway, of people living and working locally.

"The Fabric of Southall" Matt Small and Monika Forsberg at Southall Station Bridge

This artwork turns the bridge into a "Southall Quilt", bringing together the people, cultures and stories of the area. Inspired by sari borders, bandanas and embroidery, it celebrates visual traditions from across Southall. The border also includes "Progress with Unity", Ealing's borough motto.

"Under the Sun" Haffendi Anuar The Dominion Centre

This interactive artwork is inspired by traditional shadow puppet theatre, an important artform across South Asia. It also responds to the Dominion Centre's history as an Art Deco cinema and performance space. The final work includes designs made by local primary school students.

"Stronger Together" Gurdish Haugsdal Merrick Road Footbridge (internal panels of bridge)

Over 140 metres long, this mural works like a timeline, connecting Southall's past, present and future. From the Martin brothers' pottery to music legend Cleo Laine, it shows important local people and stories, reflecting journeys of arrival, strength and connection.

"Wolf Bridge Mural" Pablo Thomas Norwood Road Bridge

This mural shows twelve important moments from Southall's culture and history, from the building of the Grand Union Canal to the area's rich musical legacy. Chosen with the local community and based on historic images, the work celebrates Southall's diversity, traditions and everyday life.

"Drift" Prem Sahib King Street Square

This work is inspired by Southall's historic Art Deco cinemas, including the Himalaya Palace and the Dominion Theatre. Many of these buildings have now disappeared. Looking at their links with migrant communities, the work invites people to see Southall as a place that is always changing.
